

To Serve and Desecrate

9

One fine day, quite unexpectedly, *Uncle Carl*²⁷ dropped in for a visit. He walked in the front door wearing a police uniform complete with a gun belt and a real gun. He was most definitely not a police officer.

He then proceeds to regale us with a story about the adventure he had undertaken the previous night. It seems that he and his brother had been smoking crack all evening²⁸ and at some point, they decided that the appropriate entertainment for the evening would entail visiting their deceased grandmother's grave.

Carl's brother graciously offered to server as chauffeur in his small pickup truck. When they arrived at the cemetery, they were enraged to discover that it was closed and locked at 1:30 AM on a Monday.²⁹

Consequently, they did what any God-fearing crackhead would do in that situation and rammed the gates!³⁰ They then proceeded to joyride around the cemetery ostensibly in search of their grandmother's gravesite. Unbeknownst to them, their grandmother was not buried in that cemetery.³¹

²⁷ Actually my father's cousin.

²⁸ Like you do...

²⁹ The audacity!

³⁰ But really though, what other choice did they have?

³¹ Details...

Carl becomes enraged at his inability to find his grandmother's tomb and grabs a baseball bat from behind his seat, opens his door, and leaps into the truck bed.

For added hilarity, his brother reaches out his window to hand him a still-smoking crack pipe that Carl accepts graciously.³² Now picking up speed, Carl is in the truck bed with the crack pipe in one hand and the bat in the other knocking over tombstones like the world's most morbid game of Dominoes.

Eventually, the police showed up to put an end to their fun. At this point, let me remind you that Carl was not in jail and he was wearing a policeman's uniform.³³

The only other thing that I recall from that evening was a song he sang repeatedly:

"Double your pleasure, double your fun. Stick one in your pussy, stick one in your buns." [to the tune of a DoubleMint gum commercial from the 1980's]

I had no idea what he was talking about.

³² We can safely assume that his pinky finger was suitably extended.

³³ We are left to infer that the police were unsuccessful.